Cincinunti Hydropathic Or Water Cure Establishment. THE above Institution is now open for the reception of patients. It is located about five miles from the city on the Cartage pike, and but a few rods from the Hamilton. Cincinnati and Dayton Railroad, in the rear and at the same distance from the Miami Canal, in the front, rendering it easy of access to those desirous oj enjoying the distinct from the Miami Canal.

ton, Cincinnati and Dayton Railroad, Il the rear and at the same distance from the Minni Caual, in the front, rendering it easy of access to those desirous of enjoying the benefits of the Institution.

To the lover of nature, tew parts of the country can furnish a more pleasing variety of scenery than spreads itself before the traveller all the way from Cincinnati to the Caue. There nature and art combine, tendering the view beautiful beyond description.

The new larg, and beautiful Edifice displays the taste of the artist at a glance. The neatness and elegance of the interior, combined with the numerous attractions which present themselves to the invalid, cannot fail to render this Establishment a desirable one. The Halls are extensive, the Rooms spacious and inviting, where the invalid, can range at pleasure, free from atmospheric influences, in Inclement weather. The Hed Rooms are well ventilated, and neatly in mished; the Hath Rooms are ample and commodious, being convenient for the application of water, in every form. In connection with the Institution there is a Gymnasium Hall, seventy five test long, where patients will have an opportunity five test long, where patients will have an opportunity for lostoting their muscular strength by healthful exercise. The Springs which furnish the water for this establishment, are clear, pure, soft and abundant; flowing from a gravelly bed, they send forth water both cold and delicious. The country and neighborhood are remarkable for healthulness, purity of air, and variety of scenery. All things combined, we cannot think of a more desirable place, for those seeking health, than this institution.

Dr. Pease, laving had much experience in the treatment of disease for many years, bega leave to inform the public that no pairs will be spared for the restoration to health of those committed to his care. Mrs. Pease, who has, for several years, devoted her attention to the freamont diseases peculiar to her sex, and being every way qualified for so importers at a station, wil

POETRY.

The First Death of the Household.

Oh, many a mournful year hath flown Since first amid our family band Death came, and stole our loveliest one, And bore her to the spirit-land. Yet shrined with many a sweet, sad thought, That loved one's memory lingers still;

at loved one's memory lingers ohl she left a void that nought t mournful thoughts could fill. It only seems the other day,
Since round her dying bed we met,
With breaking hearts to weep and pray.
Her gentle soul we strove to think,
Would linger yet mid earthly flowers,
Even when 'twas trembling on the brink
Of lovelier worlds than ours.

Yes! there, e'en when all hope had flown, We wept away each lingering hour, Until the shades of death came down, And closed at last the shutting hour. And yet it seemed like sin to grieve For one so patient and realgned; For it she mourned 'twas but to leave Such breaking hearts behind.

She died. Yet death could scarcely chill Her smiling beauties, tho' she lay With cold extended limbs, for still Her face looked fairer than the day,

They bore her from her happy home, And left her with the silent dead, A pale faced tenant of the tomb. They reared no marble 'mid the flowers

Months passed, yet still our sorrow gushed; The free, glad laugh no more was heard, And many a little voice was hushed, That used to warble like a bird. And though at times we strove to smile Serenely, for each other's sake, We wept in secret all the while, As if our hearts would break.

Chalmers.

In the year 1838, Dr. Chalmers delivered a series of lectures in London on the subject of Church establishments. Of the enthusiasm created by his establishments. Of the enthusiasm created by his appearance on this occasion, Dr. Hanna gives the following account:

"Speaking of this opening lecture, the leading journal of the day said: 'From the first word that escaped the lips of the lecturer, till the concluding sentence, which died away amid the acclamations of the audience, the vivid interest was sustained with a deep and unflagging intensity.' At the second with a deep and unflagging intensity.' At the sec-ond lecture, the seats reserved for peers and mem-bers of Parliament were, at an early hour, crowded to overflow, and so difficult was it to pack the room to overnow, and so diment was it to pack the room aright, that for more than a quarter of an hour after the time fixed for opening, the lecturer could not proceed. The third lecture witnessed a still denser crowd, composed of a still higher grade, and manifesting a still higher enthusiasm. At the fourth and fifth lectures an American clergyman was present, who tells us, 'the hour at which the lecture was to compence, was two o'clock. I thought it was to commence was two o'clock. I thought it necessary to be beforehand, in order to secure a seat. When I arrived I found the hall so perfectly crammed, that at first it seemed impossible to guin admission, but by dint of perseverance I pushed my way onward through the dense crowd, till I had reached near the centre of the hall. Though the crowd was so great, it was very obvious that the assembly was made up principally of persons in the higher walks of life. Dukes, marquises, earls, viscounts, barons, baronets, bishops and members of Parliament were to be seen in every direction.

After some considerable delay and impatient waiting, the great charmer made his entrance, and vas to commence was two o'clock. I thought i waiting, the great charmer made his entrance, and was welcomed with clappings and shouts of applause, that grew more and more intense, till the noise became almost deafening. The concluding lecture was graced by the presence of nine prelates of the Church of England. The tide that had been rising and swelling each succeeding day, now burst all bounds. Carried away by the impassionate ut-terance of the speaker, long ere the close of some of his finest passages was reached, the voice of the ecturer was drowned in the applause, the au ising from their seats, and breaking out into a sim-ultuous approbation. Nor was the interest con-ined to the lecture room. "Nothing" says Dr. Begg, "could exceed the enthusiasm which pre-Begg, "could exceed the enthusiasm which pre-vailed in London. The great city seemed stirred to its very depths. The Doctor sat, when deliver-ing his lectures, behind a small table, the hall in ont being densely crowded with one of the most orilliant audiences that ever assembled in Britain. It was supposed that at least five hundred of those piesent were peers and members of the House of Commons. Sir James Graham was a very constant

The sitting attitude of Dr. Chalmers seemed, at first, irreconcileable with much energy or effect.— But such an anticipation was at once dispelled by the enthusiasm of the speaker, responded to, if pos-sible, by the still more intense enthusiasm of the audience, and, occasionally, the effect was even greatly increased, by the eloquent man springing unconsciously to his feet, and delivering with over-whelming power the more magnificent passages, a movement which on one occasion at least, was im itated by the entire audience, when the words "the king cannot—the king dare not," were uttered in accents of prophetic vehemence, that must ring in the ears of all who heard them, and were responded the ears of all who heard them, and were responded to by a whirlwind of enthusiasm, which was probably never exceeded in the history of eloquence.—Some of us sat on the platform beside the Doctor, and near us were the reporters. One seemed to leave the room every five minutes with what he had written, so that by the time the lecture was finished, it was nearly all in print. On the day of the first lecture, which companied at 2 of clock, and written, so that by the time the lecture was maisned, it was nearly all in print. On the day of the first lecture, which commenced at 2 o'clock and terminated about half-past three, some of us went round by the city, and when we reached the dinnertable at five o'clock, we were able to present to Dr. Chalmers a newspaper, I think the Sun or Globe, containing a full report of his lecture.—Nothing was more striking, however, amidst all this excitement, than the child-like humility of the great man himself. All the flattery seemed to produce no effect whatever upon him; his mind was entirely absorbed in his great object; and the same kind, playful and truly Christian spirit, that so endeared him to us all, was everywhere apparent in his conduct. * I had heard Dr. Chalmers on many occasions, but probably his London lectures afforded the most remarkable illustrations of his extraordinary power, and must be ranked amongst the most signal triumphs of oratory in any age."

FROM SANTA FE.—We learn from the trains that have recently, arrived that a large number of Indians, of different tribes, were encamped along the Arkansas river, when they came out, but they all appeared peacably disposed.

Col. Summor, with Messrs. Greiner and Baird, left this city a few days since for Acoma, where they expect to meet a body of the Gila Apaches.

We learn from Fort Defiance that the Navajos have commenced their agricultural operations, and have commenced their agricultural operations, and who learn from Mr. Greiner, who has returned from Acoma, that a trenty was concluded with the Gila Apaches, similar to the one ratified in this city a few days since. There were a number of Apaches a few days since. There were a number of appanes near Acoma, but few of them came to the meeting. They were shy, and seemed to suspect treachery. Mangus Colorado was the only chief who came to the conference. Mr. G. informs us, however, that they seem anxious to be at peace.

A detachment of new recruits from the States, under command of Colonel Steen, arrived last week, and left for Albuquerque and other points on Tuesday.—Santa Fe Gazette, July 17.

A Long Cruiss.—The Whaling bark Belle, of Fairhaven, arrived home on Kriday, after an absence of seven and three quarter years! But one man of heroriginal crew came home with her. She brought home 350 barrels of sperm and 400 of occount oil; but had previously sent home 2,600 barrels sperm, 950 whale, and 1,450 cocoanut oil.
